Special Thanks to: The Wolfpack, Wil Cloney, BLS '29 and Lee Dunn, LBS '61 for his generosity. It was his wonderful collection of Latin-English game memorabilia that we used in designing the cover and making up "The History of The Game" section. In addition, Mr. Dunn contributed a considerable amount of time and effort to the production of this program.

We appreciate people like Mr. Dunn, whose willingness to support, wholeheartedly, The Latin School of today keeps the spirit, tradition and pride in the Latin School very much alive.

— The Editors

This, the 100th Latin-English game program, is dedicated to Coach Fred Irons who for the past 20 years has done an outstanding job as faculty advisor to the football program staff. Mr. Irons is also the cross-country and track coach at BLS and has produced many championship teams.

Thanks, Mr. Irons,

— The Program Staff

Congratulations Mr. Irons, your work is greatly appreciated!

HEADMASTER'S MESSAGE

Two years ago, we at Latin celebrated our 350th anniversary as America's first school. Now we are pleased to join with our respected opponent English High School — the oldest high school in the United States — in playing the 100th game in the country's oldest continuous high school football rivalry.

As Headmaster of Latin and a fan who will be watching his 47th game, I would like to pay tribute to all the players, coaches and fans of the past who helped establish this honored tradition, and to the players and coaches of the present who, under most difficult conditions, make great sacrifices to represent their respective schools on the football field.

It is our sincere wish that this centennial game will be as competitive as games have been in the history of this rivalry, and our fond hope that this tradition of long standing will continue for another 100 years.

Joseph F. Desmond
Acting Headmaster

COACH COSTELLO'S STATEMENT

It is an honor and a privilege to be able to participate in the 100th Latin-English Football Game. It is rewarding to be able to share a common bond with players and coaches of the past, who have contributed so much to make this a great classic steeped in tradition.

I would like to thank, Captain Louis Izzi, for a fine job of leadership and also my Assistant Coaches John McDonough, Frank Casey, Frank Stevens and Darryl Ramsey for all their hard work and dedication to the program.

A special thanks to President John Reardon and the many parents of the Wolfpack Gridiron Club for all that they do to help and support the team. The players and coaches greatly appreciate you being there.

Paul F. Costello

"The Good Old Days"

Reflections on the Latin-English Rivalry

By Will Cloney, BLS '29

Oh, for the good old days!

Oh, for the glory days, the fabled years when the annual Thanksgiving Day game between Latin School and English High School was the featured event of the holiday, front-page news through decades of amateur innocence.

To the participants and their contemporaries, today's 100th game will be every bit as important as the 99 that have preceded it. To the world at large, however, it will be just another game among a hundred, just a one-day glimmer in an era of shining professional stars.

Nothing, however, can erase the glory years that started back in 1887 when staid Bostonians out for a holiday stroll through the Boston Common were startled to see the young men of Latin and English practicing modified mayhem on each other. Little did they know that they were witnessing the first organized high school football game, the prototype for rivalries that proliferated through the next century.

Until two decades ago the Latin-English competition was in almost perfect won-lost balance. Only once did either school win four straight games. Through 1945 there were 13 ties, including an amazing 10 scoreless games. Since 1966, when the composition of the schools changed considerably, Latin has won 18 of the 19 games. That impressive string has skewed the 99-year record of 51 victories for Latin, 35 for English, and the 13 ties.

In view of those figures, this modest tribute to the oldest schoolboy rivalry in America will be limited to the first 80 years, with emphasis on those in which the writer was personally involved. That involvement started in 1923, at the "new" school on Avenue Louis Pasteur (as opposed to the "old" school on Warren Avenue).

Class teams, with no coaching and little equipment, battled themselves black and blue on the field beside the school. The area was shared with a herd of cows, who did what comes naturally to cows. Their souvenirs, strewn like mines around the field, added a piquancy to the practices.

The big thrill came one day when The Coach wan-dered by. Not long out of Boston College, Charles Stanislaus FitzGerald '12, loomed as a minor deity to kids in the Sixth Class. The awe was not diminished when he booted a punt clean over the roof of the School!

Just to keep the subject in perspective, let me confess that I was not much of an athlete — short in stature, round in stomach, high in enthusiasm, low in talent. We labored through the upperclass years, practicing wherever there was an open field, but, sad to relate, those were the only four years when one school rolled up four strait victories. It was not Latin School.

My sentimental attachment went much deeper, I got my first by-line for the old Boston Herald on a Latin-English story, covered the games for a quarter century, and celebrated my pending release from four years of Army duty by claiming the 1945 game as my first post-war assignment.

Charles Fitz coached for 30 years, most of the time without assistants. those were the days of one coach for all sports — football, track and baseball. The three-season competition made for personalized rivalries with the likes of Dutchie Holland of Mechanic Arts High, Doc Fleming of High School of Commerce, Harry Tilton of Boston Trade, and Bill Pendergast of Dorchester High. Best of all, though, was the illusory hatred between Fitzie and Bill Ohrenberger of English.

For 13 years these warm, close friends staged a modfied charade at the beginning of the second half of the big game. They seemed to be arguing bitterly, pointing fingers, stamping angrily. The crowd loved it. Actually, Fitz and Bill were making sure that both teams would be offside on the ensuing kickoff — because on that play all the deserving senior benchwarmers would make a token appearance to qualify for a letter. I've always wondered what would have happened if somebody had run for a touchdown!

In that era, spectator interest peaked. At Harvard Stadium, the crowds approached 25,000, even on those occasions when the Game was Televised. In 1950, when the Stadium was not available, the Game was shifted to White Stadium, with a capacity of 11,500. Ticket scalpers had a field day before the gates were closed after 12,000 spectators had jammed in.

From the beginning of the series, the partisans came whatever the weather. They endured 14-degree temperatures in 1901 when Latin won by the strange score of 6-5. Rain, snow and blizzard did not daunt 20,000 in 1929. Three inches of mud reduced the players to anonymity in 1942. Common sense eventually prevailed; the 1954 game was postponed until Saturday, the 1962 game until Sunday.

Through the years there have been so many great teams, so many great players, that only a foolish man would try to pick the best of them. An anonymous English High historian picks the 1899 Blue as the greatest. Undefeated, it beat Latin 23-0 and laid claim to the mythical New England championship by virtue of an 18-6 victory over Salem. The identifiable Latin archivists — Frank W. Johnson '04, Lee J. Dunn, '24, and Lee J. Dunn, Jr. '61 — were more prudent. They chose no favorites, on the theory that there were so many who deserved to be chosen.

Great individual performances abound. In that 1899 game, Harry Ball scored all 23 English points — three touchdowns worth 5 points each, a field goal then valued at 5, and three one-point conversions. In 1910, Capt. Mal Logan kicked three field goals for Latin's 9-0 victory. In the 3-3 tie in 1914, Capt. O'Connor of English drop-kicked a 21-yard field goal in the last minute to match Enright's earlier 40-yarder. In 1926 Phil Hootstein ran himself into Blue immortality and for the next three years the stars sparkled — Dave Kopans, Bubba Gould, Irv Rabinovitz for Latin, Harry Downes, Lou Musco and Joe Freno for English.

Two of Latin's best, Tom Bilodeau and Buddy McLaughlin, emerged in the early '30s, along with Roger Battles and Al Munichiello for English. In 1940, Braves Field was a skating rink but Tom Sullivan glided for two touchdowns to give Latin an upset 19-12 victory as the game was broadcast for the first time. In 1946, Dan Brosnahan came off the injured list to set up all three touchdowns in the 19-0 English victory. The calculators came out in 1950 in the wildest game of the series, a 41-30 English triumph as Gerry O'Leary for the Blue and John George for the Purple scored three times each.

The 1953 game was almost as wild, Latin winning 31-25 with Boots Connolly the star. The Purple won another of its numerous Conference championships in 1956 when the Corvi-Crosson passing combinations clicked for three touchdowns in the 19-12 victory. The 1958 game was a classic, with Tom Bilodeau, Jr., passing, punting and running Latin to a 26-24 victory and the Conference championship. Tommy did it again the following year, enlisting Paul Barringer in a 22-6 romp. Barringer starred again in 1960 when Joe Barrett's three interceptions helped Latin make it three straight with a 20-16 victory. In 1966 English eked out a 20-18 win behind the quarterbacking of Mike Thomas, despite a phenomenal performance by Latin's Lincoln Pope. It was the last English victory for fifteen long years, until the 1981 team scored a 12-2 upset.

No longer does the Game produce a Boston Conference champion because there no longer is an all-encompassing Boston league. For competition, Latin has strayed to the Dual County League, but it's hard to envision Acton-Boxborough replacing Boston English as a Thanksgiving foe.

There's something about a Latin-English game, just as there's something about a Harvard-Yale game, that defies reason. Perhaps it's the mystique that comes from a century of healthy rivalry.

One thing is certain. The thousands of young men who have played in the Game for the last 99 years will never forget the experience. Neither will the ones playing today or the ones who come after them for another hundred years, we hope.

Scorers for the Blue: Hootstein (2) Marr and Nemzoff . . . BLS points came when Costigan intercepted an EHS forward and ran 50 yards for the TD . . . It was Marr's line plunges and Hootstein's runs that wrecked the Purple . . . EHS heroes: Freno, Marr, Nemzoff, Sheehan and Hootstein . . . Purple: Costigan, Verge, Maloney, Colbert, Wells and Hunt . . . Vogel was unable to play.

50 YEARS AGO

1936 . . . Braves Field . . . BLS 13 - EHS 0 . . . very muddy field . . . Plackter (L) broke thru to block EHS punt and recover ball for TD . . . sloppy footing and soggy ball made an open game nearly impossible, though a good number of passes were tried . . . Example: First play: BLS forward intercepted by EHS, run back 10 yards, fumble, BLS recovered wet ball . . . Purple's other TD came from a series of plays by Bjorkland, Gorman, Keyes, and Walsh . . . Dacey kicked the extra point . . . Ed Cowhig carried the ball three out of four times on the EHS threats. Aiding him: Cuddy, Williams, Costello, the Reddys shone for the Blue . . . Capt. Harry Gorman, Plackter, Dacey, Lambert carried the Purple banner high . . . Lambert intercepted EHS pass, lateralled to Gorman who ran for TD, but play called back as "lateral" was "forward".

40 YEARS AGO 60TH Game of the Series

1946 — Harvard Stadium . . . EHS 19 - BLS 0 . . . Dan Brosnahan (E) came back after being out a month with injuries to roll over and run through the Purple . . . Set up TDs for Balerna, Balfour and Capt. Tsavaris to score . . . The Blue line averaged nearly 200 pounds to the Purple's 160 . . . Latin made two marches in the third period to the 7 and the 3 . . . The Blue held each time . . . Dick Curran (L) injured leg on opening kick-off . . . Mabry (L), a converted guard, stood out in the Latin backfield . . . Al Luciano, Conrad Balfour, and Dell'Orfano pleased the large gathering of Old Blues . . . TDs came as follows: 8 yard pass Brosnahan to Tsavaris, 10 yard pass followed by a 35 yard run . . . Luciano to Dell'Orfano, and Balfour from the 2 . . . Purple lights: Garcia, Powell, Mabry, and Prendergast . . . For the Blue: the whole team was grand.

30 YEARS AGO 70th Game of the Series

1956 — B. U. Field . . . BLS 19 - EHS 12 . . . The Purple had to come from behind to win . . . and when Eastie unexpectedly defeated Southie, the Purple won the Conference Championship . . . Corvi, Latin passer, and Crosson combined for 3 TD's of 10, 36, and 65 yards . . . Mullins took charge of the Blue attack . . . Scored from the one, after a Latin fumble on the five and on a 15 yard pass from Donovan on the 44, put the Blue out in front 12-6 . . . Latin's continual fumbling and penalties held the Purple at bay . . . The Blue fumbled on its 36, Crosson recovered, next play Corvi passed and scored, tieing the score . . . Fourth period: English on the march to the Purple 14 . . . Fumble . . . Crosson recovered . . . Crosson up middle to 29 . . . Johnson to 40 . . . Crosson and DeYesso to 34 . . . Clipping penalty-back to midfield . . . everyone knew a pass was coming . . . it came . . . and Latin was home . . . Blue stars: Mullins, Donovan, Stuart and LeBlanc . . . for the Purple: Crosson, Corvi, Johnson, McCool, and Laird.

20 YEARS AGO 80th Game of the Series

1966 . . . Harvard Stadium . . . EHS 20 - BLS 18 . . . After two years of frustration, EHS quarterback Mike Thomas finally led his team to a victory over the Latin school — but not before they all received the scare of their young lives.

This game was somewhat similar to the 1957 game when BLS exploded for an early lead and EHS came back to win. The main difference between the two being that last year's Blue and Blue squad was so heavily favored to run the Purple right into the Charles River. So that when Latin School backs Scott Guild and Frank Mucci scored first period touchdowns to give BLS a 12-0 lead, the record crowd of 25,000 was more than a little bit shocked.

The second period, however, was all English. Thomas went over from the two for the first Blue TD. Ricci scored from the six, and, late in the period, Tom Cassidy gathered in a Thomas pass on the L 45 and sprinted into the end zone for English's last TD. The Purple went 80 yards in 7 plays in the third period for its last score. Highlights of the march being a 23-yard pass to tackle-eligible Capt. Ed Holland, and Lincoln Pope's phenomenal 25 yard run for the score. Pope's attempt for a 2 point conversion was thwarted by Bill MacDonald, of English, and there ended the scoring.

The game wasn't decided, however, until the waning moments of the contest when a BLS fumble ended its last scoring threat.

Stars for the Blue: Mike Thomas and the MacDonalds; for the Purple: Holland, Costello, and Pope.

10 YEARS AGO 90th Game of the Series

1976 . . . Nickerson Field . . . BLS 11 - EHS 6 . . . On a bright, sunny day a heavily favored Latin School squad could muster only a safety, a field goal, and a fumble recovery in the end zone to overcome a winless EHS team which came very close to pulling off the biggest upset in 20 years.

More than 7,000 fans watched as an EHS quick kick was blocked for a safety, and Kevin Riley booted a 24 yard field goal to constitute all the BLS scoring in the first half. Ken Bradford scored on a reverse from one yard out for the Blue with 14 seconds left in the first half.

A scoreless third quarter saw continued inspired playing by the EHS team which had to overcome a 172 yard rushing total by the Purple's Tim Mulvey.

Latin's Steve Wool pounced on a Mulvey fumble in the end zone midway in the fourth quarter to seal the victory. BLS dominated the contest offensively but had problems putting the ball in the end zone. Both teams had touchdowns nullified by penalties.

This was Latin's 43rd win in the series against 34 losses and 13 ties. Stars for the Blue were Primm, Bradford and Hubson; for the Purple: Mulvey, Wool, Michalowski, and O'Keefe.

Thanksgiving Day Message

Given this year's 100th English High School-Latin School Thanksgiving Day football classic, I feel particularly proud to be a part of the tradition that is English High School's. I'm equally proud of the fact that we have an exceptional group of gentlemen representing the school, on the playing field, this year.

I'd like to salute all of them, as well as the terrific members of our coaching staff. Each of you has an opportunity to play a unique part in the history of English High School. Cherish that opportunity, play well, as be thankful for all or blessings.

P.S. Let's bring home the bacon!

Sidney W. Smith
Headmaster

COACH PARKER'S STATEMENT

I am particularly proud of the efforts of this year's football squad. Our team exhibits selfless dedication, determination and courage.

As we approach the 100th playing of this football classic, our aims for this Thanksgiving morning become clear: Hard, fair playing.

We are confident that the tradition of pride, respect, and enthusiasm evidenced by the English High School family of young men and women will reach out and support our team on the field. A win today will project the English High School into a second 100 years of success in this special event.

To the fine coaches who have made our season a positive one, John Sousa and Milton Johnson, thank you, and a special thanks to our Headmaster, Mr. Smith, for his complete support and encouragement.

The schools met for the first time in 1881. From 1881 till 1887 they did not meet again as rivals, but, on the contrary, for three of these years one team represented both of the schools. In 1887 another game took place between them, and since then the rivals have met every year . . . .
